“If it’s not Your Money, it’s a Crime!”

Helping yourself to other people’s property is a crime. Preventing exploitation of older Texans and those with disabilities is everyone’s business.
What is Financial Exploitation?
Financial exploitation is the illegal or improper use of another person’s money or property for personal profit or gain. Financial exploitation of older adults and those with disabilities is a major problem. Stopping it is everyone’s business.

Examples Include:
- Forging someone’s signature.
- Misusing or stealing someone’s money or property.
- Coercing or deceiving someone into signing documents such as a contract or will.
- Improperly using conservatorship, guardianship, or power of attorney.

Signs and symptoms include:
- Cashing checks without permission.
- Sudden changes in bank accounts or banking practices.
- A person with the account owner makes an unexplained withdrawal of a lot of money.
- Adding extra names on a bank signature card.
- Unapproved ATM card withdrawals.
- Sudden changes in a will or other financial documents.
- Unexplained missing funds or valuables.
- Providing substandard care.
- Unpaid bills despite having enough money.
- Forged signature for financial transactions or for the titles of property.
- Relatives who suddenly appear claiming their rights to a person’s affairs and property.
- Unexplained sudden transfer of assets.
- Providing unnecessary services.
- A complaint of financial exploitation.

Who may exploit others?
- Family members
- Caregivers – paid or volunteer
- People with a personal relationship with the person being exploited, such as friends, roommates, or neighbors
