It belongs to no particular race or creed or color. It begins in the warm depths of countless hearts until, for a fleeting time, it has captured and enriched the daily lives of a continent of living beings.